Comments
It is always a joy to take classes with Daniela. She does an excellent job of helping students understand some very difficult texts, and she's unfailingly helpful and kind. Her passion for the ancient Greek texts that we covered this semester was as obvious as it was infectious.
Discussing Aristotle and Cicero in a thought-provoking manner, while still ensuring each student would not misinterpret each thinker's ideas.
Encourages students to reach out for guidance

Please identify area(s) where you think the course could be improved.

Comments
The only suggestion I would have is better structuring of class time. Certain conversations had a way of going far beyond the time allotted for them, which resulted in less time for other parts of the works we were reading. And it's great that we all had so much to talk about! At the same time, however, it led to some uneven coverage of the works we were reading in class.
More time for the seminar, I wanted to more discussions on each thinker, because what I learned in class was often invaluable for honing my own interpretations of the text.
